Operation [REDACTED]

1. From instructing and observing the two students of this operation, it is very apparent that several items should be stressed if these students are to be used in any way. First of all, the security angle, in regards to the students own viewpoint, would have to be worked on. Their conception of security was "nil" in my opinion. Any, and all questions asked by me were answered even though they did not know who I was or for whom I worked. Secondly, it was noticeable that they had had very little technical knowledge or mechanical "know how".

2. In closing, I would like to mention the fact that both students were very observant and anxious to learn all that was taught even to the smallest detail. The smaller of the two seemed to be very quiet and to get any answers from him, he would have to be asked direct questions. This may have been because all this business was new and bewildering to him.
